Personal Profile

My background is as a physician working in the NHS for over 40 years. For almost 30 years I have been a consultant cardiologist. In addition to my clinical work I was for many years involved in medical administration and served both as Head of Department for 10 years and also as Trust Clinical Director of Medicine (a board level appointment) for 5 years. During this time I gained much practical experience in complaint and dispute investigation and resolution.

In recent years I have developed an extensive medico-legal practice. In the course of this I have become convinced that alternative dispute resolution via mediation is the appropriate way to deal with many medico-legal complaints.

In order to equip myself with the skills to deal with such mediation I successfully became an accredited mediator in 2016.
